WATER INTO WAVES

Water Into Waves — Linwood Original
Mixed Media Original Art

Fluid, layered, and filled with movement, Water Into Waves explores transformation—the subtle shift from stillness into motion, from one state of being into another. The composition is divided into two distinct visual languages, creating a compelling dialogue between quiet atmosphere and expressive energy.

On the left, washes of misty blue, slate, charcoal, and weathered grey build a deeply textured field. Fine drips, scratched marks, translucent layers, and fragments of handwritten text give the surface a sense of history, while touches of blush, ochre, and black emerge like memories beneath the water.

The right side releases that restraint into movement. Sweeping ribbons of ivory, charcoal, and golden yellow curve and overlap across a softer ground, their continuous paths recalling currents, ripples, and waves. The contrast feels intentional: structure gives way to fluidity, and stillness becomes motion.
