

AND TENDERNESS FELL

And Tenderness Fell
Mixed Media on Canvas

And Tenderness Fell captures the fragile moment when emotion gives way—softness descending into the layered complexity of memory and experience. A luminous field of pale greys, muted blues, and softened neutrals creates an atmospheric ground where gesture and structure move in quiet tension.

Linear calligraphic marks sweep vertically across the canvas like threads or falling rain, while layered sketches and translucent forms emerge and disappear beneath the surface. A bold field of red interrupts the softness with graphic intensity, creating a visual counterpoint that energizes the composition.
