Minimal yet intentional, the composition is punctuated by two circular elements—one hovering, one grounded—suggesting balance, presence, and the quiet awareness of one another. The crossing linear gestures at top and base introduce a sense of structure, anchoring the forms without disrupting their stillness.

Outlined in expressive charcoal, the figures feel both protected and defined, as if suspended in a moment of pause. The surrounding ground—washed in warm, atmospheric neutrals—adds a sense of calm expansiveness, allowing the central forms to breathe.
