

FADING ECHOES

Fading Echoes — DJE Original

Soft, rhythmic, and quietly nostalgic, Fading Echoes explores the way memories shift over time—some remaining vivid, others softening at the edges until only their impression remains. Layered, interconnected forms move horizontally across the canvas, creating a visual cadence that feels like fragments of experience repeating and slowly dissolving.

Delicate lines of blush, dusty rose, ivory, and muted coral emerge against an atmospheric ground of pale blue-grey and soft stone. Circular motifs appear throughout the composition, overlapping larger organic forms and creating moments of connection within each loosely defined layer.

The hand-worked surface gives the piece a tactile, timeworn quality. Some marks are clearly articulated while others seem to recede into the background, beautifully reinforcing the idea of an echo—something once distinct that grows softer with distance, yet never disappears entirely.
